REPORTS.

From Friend of China March. 10th.

As we predicted some time ago, the unwanted scum of Gordon's rowdies—the regenerators of China—are initiating a reign of terror of a novel kind. They league together in bands of a dozen or so, and commit the most daring burglaries and piracies. One of their freaks occurred on the morning of Tuesday, the 8th instant, and has been thus written of to us—

"On board the British Brig Kaffir Chief under despatch for Newchwang, having on board specie and drug to the value of say, $12,000. March 8th, at 2 A.M., Seaman John Smith on watch, three sampans came alongside, from two of which six or seven Europeans came on board, two of whom pointed revolvers at Smith, and told him, at his peril, to be silent or they would shoot him. Hearing the noise of boats coming alongside, the Master, (Hawkins), Chief Officer, (Dill), and Pilot, (Shaw), came on deck simultaneously, which so alarmed the would be pirates that they retreated hastily, one of them, as the mate went to the gangway with a lanthorn, firing a pistol at him, the ball from which lodged in the ladder. They then made off, one a little damper than the others, by reason of a fall off the gangway into the river, where it is a pity but he sunk."

WE are requested to state that the American ship Bengal, Captain Melville, bound from Puget Sound to this port, but now long over due, has put back to San Francisco, having lost her rudder. This news will be welcome to many friends of Captain Melville who, we believe, had given up the Bengal as lost.—Shanghai Paper.

From the "China Express."

The Eliza Steward, Osborne, from Hongkong for Liverpool, put into Algoa Bay Dec. 16, short of water, and with crew sick.

The Antonio Terry, Luces, which arrived at New York Jan. 15, from Manila, had experienced very heavy weather, and had sprung mainmast.

The Maggie Leslie, Stephen, from Shields for Hongkong, put into Portsmouth Jan. 30 with windlass broken.

The Sir W. F. Williams from Shanghai, which was spoken on January 7, in 3 N., 22 W., reported that her master had died in the China seas.

THE telegrams from Calcutta per Behar, received via Galle, come down to the 2nd inst. We have been favored with the following intelligence received that way. "The "steamer Reiver had arrived; Patna was "quoted 1018 rupees; the money market was "becoming tight. The third Opium sale was "postponed until the 10th March."

WE hear that a move is being made by the leaders of the mercantile community to re-establish, or to resuscitate, the Merchant Seamens' Hospital. We believe that the local authorities are desirous, or are willing, that the medical charge of merchant seamen should form part of the functions of the Government Civil Hospital; but, we have reason to suppose, that the Merchants, having no confidence whatever in the Government, and dreading Governor Robinson's cheeseparing propensities, are averse to the merchant seamen falling under the tender mercies of the Government.

We have very strong impressions on this subject, and as we can speak from many year's experience, we claim consideration for what we are about to say. Furthermore, our ideas are little likely to set in favor of the Government, unless our convictions are pretty clear and strong—that is to say, we have notoriously such a wretched opinion of our present local administration, that our mind is hardly likely to decide a question between them and the merchants in favor of government, unless we have strong grounds to go upon.

The Seamen's Hospital has always been a perfect disgrace to this Colony. We have been pestered with complaints regarding it, and should have attacked it as a stock abuse, if our doing so could possibly have led to an amelioration of the grievance. To be conducted properly, a hospital must be organised and carried on with a degree of discipline, which it is entirely beyond the power of this community to achieve. Now we doubt very much indeed whether this fact has ever been realised by any of the gentlemen who have hitherto been saddled with the management of the establishment. At all events, if such a desideratum were ever entertained, most assuredly no measures were ever adopted to carry it out. The most eligible medical man offering was selected to fill the office of resident surgeon, and on him devolved the management to its most minute details. Now there are to be found, many well educated and proficient medical practitioners, but there is not one in a thousand among such gentlemen, who is capable of establishing, enforcing, and maintaining that organization and discipline, without which a sailor's hospital must necessarily be a dead failure. Besides the medical men hitherto selected for the office in Hongkong have been permitted to enjoy private practice, and we regret to say have entered on a scramble of competition which lowered their respectability to the level of the proprietor of a China bum boat. The consequence has been that the laches of the doctor as to his hospital duties, became a set off to the misconduct of his patients, and the mouths of both were shut.

To be sure it is quite possible that a capable medical man may be obtained on terms which prohibit private practice entirely. But even so, what security can the Directors have that the nominee possesses that capacity for organisation which we have stated to be so essential? The difficulty we indicate may not be absolutely insurmountable, although we so consider it, but in any case great and incessant efforts are required to overcome it. We doubt if the difficulty be rightly comprehended: if it be, we are sure that not a hand nor a voice has been raised to meet it, and we are equally sure, that even should a desirable organisation be established, it will not be maintained, but be allowed to collapse from apathy, or inapplicable, intolerable interference.

Now with the Government Hospital matters are quite different. There, organisation is apt to be carried to an extreme and to degenerate into circumlocution. The system is based on organisation, for the establishment and maintenance of which, there is a direct train of responsibility, commencing at Downing Street, embracing the Governor of the colony, descending to the Colonial Surgeon, then to the Resident surgeon, and then to the dressers and nurses. Any such acts of impropriety as have hitherto disgraced the mismangement of the Seamen's Hospital here, could, and certainly would, be reported to Downing St. or even before the House of Commons, and involve the whole local administration in embarrassment and difficulty. There are public guarantees which the Press is so useful in enforcing, and these guarantees, a Seamen's Hospital established by the mercantile community must ever utterly lack.

Moreover, although we cannot say much for the independence, the public spirit, or the consistency of our Colonial Surgeon, we cheerfully bear testimony to the excellent organisation established at, and the discipline maintained in the Government Civil Hospital, and we know from his own public despatches, that he is in favor of the Seamen's Hospital being done away with, and the business transferred to the Civil Hospital! It may be that more accommodation will be required; and it may be desirable that the merchants should claim and obtain some surveillance over sailors who may be admitted.

In any case we would recommend the parties who are moving in the affair to see what arrangement they can make with the Governor. The funds at their disposal, the sale of the old hospital, and perhaps a little more, might form a und sufficient to erect a building for the purpose, adjoining to, or in the immediate vicinity of, the Civil Hospital; and visits of surveillance from non-official justices of the peace might be arranged as guarantees of the performance of any agreement that may be come to.

It is true that the visits to the Gaol of the non-official justices of the peace are simply reduced to a dead letter, or in other words their utility is swamped by those all prevailing crimes, suppressio veri and suggestio falsi. But then, the non-official justices have no one to thank but themselves for having their functions thus prostituted to the imbecility and incapacity of an administration which is not entitled to consideration nor respect. If the non-official justices had done their duty with the commonest sense of honesty and independence, they would long since have caused the reform which is so much needed in the department of the Gaol. We ask them one and all what their opinion of the Gaol is; and we ask them, whether instead of simply recording those opinions on the justices visiting book, or of adopting them when they have met, they have not truckled to the powers that be, and prostituted their public duties to the fear of their conduct proving unpalatable to the Governor? We ask them whether it is, or is not the fact, that although labor on the roads is greatly needed, about five or six hundred convicts are kept within the gaol walls, a burden to the colony, in a state of all but utter idleness? We ask them whether it is, or is not the fact, that the turnkeys appointed to take care of this mass of criminal humanity is not in the proportion of about one turnkey to a hundred convicts? We ask them whether it is, or is not the fact, that owing to the miserable pittance given to these turnkeys, they seldom remain much more than three months in office? We ask whether it is or is not the fact, that several of the non-official justices sat on a committee whose finding was most damnatory of the gaol discipline here, and yet all parties concerned, participated in the concealment which the government desired should be observed?

And yet this is all done to serve an administration into whose hands the merchants shirk the idea of placing the civil hospital! O tempora, o mores!

However we incline to the belief that these visits of the Hospital would provide the check sought for; and for the reasons already stated we think the matter should be placed in the hands of the government.

EXTRACTS.

NEWS FROM THE NORTH.

Per Chanticleer.

Gordon's progress.

We are glad to learn that the city of Kintang has surrendered to Major Gordon, without resistance. A portion of the garrison retired, and the remainder shaved their heads. Kintang is situated nearly due West of Chang-chow, not far South of the Canal. Gordon will now, we believe, march due North to Tan-yang, a city on the Grand Canal some thirty miles beyond Chang-chow. The communications of the latter place with Nankin will thus be completely cut off. We learn that Major Gordon became possessed of the Chung-wan's sword at Leyang. That chief had given it to Tse-wang, who, when he made his sortie from Le-yang, left it in the palace. Being shut out by the inhabitants and compelled to retire, he was, of course, unable to recover it, and it fell into the hands of Gordon. It is reported that Chung-wang has gone to Nankin, with the intention of collecting his property and retiring to Kwang-si.—Shanghai Shipping List.

The trade in arms with the rebels, which some time ago used to furnish so remunerative employment to a number of low class foreigners, appears still to be carried on, notwithstanding the difficulties which must now attend it. Two captures of boatloads of muskets and ammunition have been made by the foreign authorities during the past fortnight. Two Englishmen and one American were arrested on the night of the 11th inst. in a boat loaded with arms, and two Italians were taken on the following night under similar circumstances. The Americans and Englishmen are now, of course, in custody of their respective consuls, and the Italians have likewise been placed at the disposal of H. I.M.'s representative.

It would be a good maxim to adopt, that every foreigner who incurs any penalty from the law should be deported from Shanghai, after undergoing the punishment to which he may have been condemned. The place might thus, at length, become gradually cleared of the blackguards who infest it and, at intervals, startle the inhabitants by the commission of crimes that, for boldness and magnitude, could not be equalled in the records of the palmiest days of California or the Australian gold diggings. Robbery and murder were tolerably common there; but it was reserved to Shanghai to become the scene of successive thefts of steamers unparalelled in audacity, the perpetrators of which have, we believe uniformly escaped unpunished. An American, well known to have been concerned in the abduction of the Firefly, was for some time walking unmolested about the settlement, and encouraged by this impunity, has now again distinguished himself in the robbery of the Tsattee. Lindley, the prime mover in the theft of the Firefly, has passed through Hongkong on his way home with a large sum which he received as a reward from the rebel leaders. White, an Englishman who was concerned in the same affair, was we believe, the only one of the party who fell into the hands of justice; he was condemned to three years imprisonment, but has since been called to a higher tribunal. We trust, however, that the eight men who have now been arrested by Ching, will not escape so easily as those whose example they have imitated; but that the severity of their punishment will convince their brother rowdies that the day when serving the rebels was looked on as venial, has passed. Supplying the rebels with arms is only less criminal than supplying them with steamers, because in that case no theft has been committed in the first instance. In both cases the individuals concerned are guilty of supplying with munitions of war, of more or less importance, a party to whom their government have declared themselves opposed. It is unfortunate that the men arrested are frequently only employes of others, who merely venture their money, and pay others to run the risk of personal liberty. But this consideration cannot justify any laxity in the administration of justice towards those who are found actively concerned. They were well aware, at the time they agreed to the job, that, by so doing, they rendered themselves amenable to punishment, and the fact that they were prompted by others is no excuse for them, though it would be an additional reason for punishing the real owners of the arms, or the real prompters of the abduction of a steamer, with the utmost severity the law allows.—Id.

[Should not our contemporary have said "a belligerent in a quarrel in which the British "government bound themselves and declared themselves neutral"—and not have called the Taipings a party to whom the British "government have declared themselves "opposed."—Ed. D. P.]

The following are from the Spectator,

The South American mails bring intelligence of a catastrophe almost without a parallel in modern history. Two thousand ladies have been burnt alive in the capital of Chili. On the 8th December, the last day of festival of the Immaculate Conception, some three thousand ladies of Santiago, mostly of the higher classes, with several hundred men, crowded into the cathedral to attend the special service. The church, a wooden one, was lighted with twenty thousand tapers, arranged in festoons and hung with drapery, which, just as the service began, caught fire. The flames spread in an instant round the building, the mass of candles gave it volume and intensity, the roof began to sputter, the men, panic-stricken, rushed like a herd of bullocks to the door, crushing the women in their passage, the roof kept dropping fire, and in less than a quarter of an hour two thousand women were charred, black, and dead. Two hundred cart-loads of corpses were carried out, and there can be scarcely a family of note in Chili which has not lost a representative. The great majority of the victims must have died of suffocation, the smoke from the burning draperies completely filling the church.

On Monday the magistrates of the Sittingbourne petty sessions were engaged in examining another alleged breach of the Foreign Enlistment Act, the Government accusing one of their own officials, Mr. Rumble, the engineering inspector of machinery in Her Majesty's dockyard at Sheerness, of being directly concerned in the offence. Late last year, an old ship of war, the Victor, nearly going to pieces, was sold to Messrs. Coleman and Pearson. After the sale she went to Sheerness for repairs, and while the repairs were still going on, on the 24th November, the Victor stole away, sailed for Calais, put up a Confederate flag, and took a Confederate captain on board, formerly mate of the Alabama, who in trying to engage the men promised that the prize-money should "go forward." The allegation was that Mr. Rumble not only helped the Confederate vessel to sea on her illegal voyage, but afterwards actually went to Calais, and helped to engage the men for the voyage. As it does not appear that any of the Sheerness equipments were necessarily for warlike purposes, had not the authorities of the vessel actually acknowledged the warlike destination of the ship there might have been no case against the fitters-out. Even now it is not certain that there is one, as it seems to be held on hand that a ship of war may be sold to belligerents, though not equiped for them. Mr. Rumble was, however, committed for trial, and, of course, bail was taken.

The distress in Lancashire has, we are sorry to say, begun to increase again somewhat rapidly. In the first week of January there were 3,100 more paupers than in the previous week, in the second week 5 620 more than in the first week, and in the third week 5, 520 more than in the second.

Mr. Richard Oke Millett, a surgeon, of Penpol, West Cornwall, has been arrested upon a charge of having poisoned his brother, Jacob Millett. Deceased, who was in easy circumstances, was living with his brother on 30th December, and ate a very hearty dinner at two o'clock. An hour after he complained of pain in his stomach, and his brother gave him a glass of brandy, and a female servant subsequently procured him whisky and water. During the night he vomited several times and next morning he died. Another brother, whose suspicions had been in some way excited, applied to the Home Secretary, the body was exhumed, and poison found in it,—hence the proceedings, which are only as yet interesting from the great rarity of this crime among the educated.

Parliament was opened on Thursday by commission, Her Majesty being still unable to attend. The Speech is, as usual, very formal and reserved and, bears many marks of composite workmanship. Her Majesty expresses her gratitude for the safe delivery of the Princess of Wales, and then plunges at once into the question of the day. The "state of affairs on the Continent has been the cause of great anxiety." the death of the late King of Denmark having "brought into application the stipulations of the Treaty of May, 1852," which are recapitulated at length. Her Majesty has been "unremitting in her endeavours to bring about a peaceful settlement of the difficulties which on this matter have arisen between Germany and Denmark" and to ward off the dangers which might follow from the beginning of warfare in the North of Europe, and Her Majesty will continue her efforts on the interest of peace." Her Majesty "regrets" the destruction of a considerable portion of Kagosima, hopes that the insurrection in New Zealand will be put down has abroad to give up the Ionian Islands, hopes for more cotton, and has appointed a Royal Commission to "revise the various forms of subscription and declaration required to be made by the clergy of the Established Church." No other measures are promised whatever, and the Speech makes no allusion to America, Poland, India, or the Congress.

The case of "O'Kane v. O'Kane and Lord Palmerston," which has for the last three months been one of the main interests of the clubs, has come to a somewhat mysterious ending,—the petitioner refuses to Press the case, which has been dismissed by the Judge Ordinary, with the remark that the character of the respondent (Mrs. O'Kane), who had "challenged the fullest inquiry and proof," "should receive no tarnish from this ordeal," and that "it is a matter of great satisfaction to the Court that the name of the co-respondent, which is never mentioned in England without a just pride, should have passed from its annals without a stain." Not so the name of the obscure, petitioner, on whom Sir James Wilde passed a severe censure, predicting that he would meet with the contempt which any one who tries to take away the character of the woman he calls his wife without offering any proof of his accusations, may expect. It seems from a letter of Mr. O'Kane's solicitor (Mr. Horsley), quoted in the proceedings, as well as from Mr. O'Kane's letter to his own solicitor, also quoted, that there had been an attempt, as the Judge Ordinary remarked, to represent the resolve spontaneously taken by the petitioner—and taken, as he represents, on his children's account, and at the advice of his friends,—as a "compromise" or "arrangement," which is always understood to be between the parties to the suit. The imputation thus conveyed Mr. Browne, the counsel for Mr. O'Kane expressly withdrew, stating that it was "an arrangement by which persons who are not a party to the suit have brought it to a close." Of course, who these persons are,—whether, as there was apparently some wish to suggest, they were the Roman Catholic clergy, who, having solemnized the marriage between Mr. and Mrs. O'Kane, would probably be steadily opposed to a secular divorce,—or whether it were some convenient Mrs. Harris who interested herself warmly in the little O'Kanes,—will probably now never be known. It must be sufficient for the public that Lord Palmerston's reputation remains absolutely unaffected by the suit.

DURING the past week but little of interest has occurred in our Market for Cotton and Woollen Manufactures. The speculative feature noticed in our last appears to have died out, but prices are still maintained.
